GRADY HONORED.

Atlanta Shows Her Love for Him by Erecting a Monument to His Memory.

ATLANTA, GA., Oct. 21.—The monument erected in honor of Henry W. Grady, on one of the principal streets of Atlanta, was unveiled today in the presence of the governor of New York, the governor of Georgia and a large assembly of southern people. The universal love and respect in which Henry Grady was held, marked by the presence of New York's chief executive, gave the occasion more than local interest. The entire nation was interested in the movement for the erection of the monument, and Atlanta today feels that the nation's sympathies were with her people in honoring the distinguished dead. The hour set for the ceremony was high noon. A cloudless sky in the early morning gave promise of a bright day. The promise was well fulfilled, for when half past ten o'clock, the sun shone brightly on the busy streets of the city. The tramp of marching feet had been heard all through the forenoon, as militia companies and civic organizations, who were to take part in the parade, marched to the place of assembling. The carriages which were to convey the governor of the state and the distinguished guests were ranged along by the side of the capitol. A local committee of the Grady Monument association, headed by Mr. Northen, had called at the hotel and escorted Governor Hill to the state capitol, where Governor Northen received him. Mrs. Grady, with her son and daughter, were in waiting with the Grady Monument association. Shortly before 11 o'clock Governor Hill was escorted to a carriage drawn by four white horses, which stood at the foot of the capitol steps. He was accompanied by Governor Northen. Mr. Northen and Clark Howell who succeeded Henry Grady as managing editor of the Atlanta Constitution. Mrs. Grady and her children were escorted to another carriage and the distinguished visitors from New York were distributed among the members of the monument committee in carriages following. When the guests had taken their places in the carriages the news was sent to Grand Marshal Col. W. L. Calhoun, by one of his aides, and a few moments later the command to march was given. Marshal Calhoun rode at the head of the column with ten aides, five from the Fourth Georgia Battalion, in full uniform, and five in civilian dress with grey sashes. The long procession was in six divisions, in which were the famous Mexican band, the Fourth Georgia Battalion, the Grady cadets, the Atlanta artillery, Moreland cadets, Atlanta Knights of Pythias, Atlanta branch of Knights of Honor, boys and girls of the high school, confederate veterans, M. O. Mitchell post, G. A. R., Railroad league, several hundred strong, 200 men from the editorial, business, typographical and mechanical departments of the Constitution, newspaper boys, the Atlanta fire department, with seven companies and seventy men in line. Mayor Hemphill had declared the day a holiday, and almost all the stores along the line of march were closed, while the sidewalks were thronged with citizens of all classes and visitors from the surrounding country, who had come in on the morning trains. There were comparatively few decorations on the buildings. The procession passed through the principal streets of the city, and as the last division passed the monument the Grady cadets were detached and surrounded the platform at the statue as a guard of honor. The procession passed on through Forsyth street to Walton, then back to Marietta, returning to mass its divisions at the monument. After the governor and his guests had left their carriages, Governor Northen, Governor Hill, and the other guests, with the members of the monument commission, took their seats on the stand where accommodations had been prepared for 500. Governor Hill was greeted with loud applause by the crowd which had assembled about the monument and which filled Marietta street in both directions. It was shortly after noon when the Mexican band rendered a selection. President Northen then called the assemblage to order. Miss Gussie Grady, the only daughter of Henry Grady, then stepped forward and drew the cord which held the canvas in place about the figure on the monument. The canvas slipped from the statue, leaving the bronze figure revealed. It was greeted with cheer after cheer by the great assembly. When the cheering had in a part subsided, Rev. J. B. Lee was introduced and delivered the invocation. At its conclusion Hon. Fulton Colville read a statement, prepared by the monument committee, giving a brief history of the movement for the erection of the monument. It showed that nearly every state in the union had subscribed to the fund and the rest of the amount had been raised within thirty days after Mr. Grady's death. The Mexican band then rendered another selection and Hon. Clark Howell stepped to the front of the platform and introduced the orator of the occasion, David B. Hill, governor of New York. Governor Hill received an enthusiastic greeting from the assemblage.

GERMAN ANARCHISTS.

They Injure Their Cause by Appealing to French Brethren.

BERLIN, Oct. 21.—German anarchists have strangled the cause of the party in the socialist congress at Erfurt by their appeal to the anarchists of France. The anti-French feeling is very strong in Germany now, and the course of the anarchists is held as unpatriotic, if not treasonable. The government is said to be seriously considering the arrest of some of them. Should any actual agreement be made with French anarchists for agitation against the government of Germany, energetic action will undoubtedly be taken to punish the agitators.

HOEY EXPLAINS.

He Admits That He Did Own Some Stock in the Massachusetts Express Company.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—John Hoey, ex-president of the Adams Express company, this morning gives his side of the famous Sherburne deal, the alleged reason for his dismissal from the company. Mr. Hoey said: "I bought some stock in the Massachusetts Express company in conjunction with Sherburne and Spooner. Taft was the man who held it and transferred it. The first batch we bought was sold to Wm. B. Dinsmore, then president of the Adams Express company. Mr. Dinsmore held that stock for two years and then turned it over to the Adams company. In the meantime we had secured an option on the rest of the stock and the Adams Express company, through Mr. Dinsmore, decided that the company should own it all. My only sin was voting as a trustee to buy that stock for the company. But, mind you, I did not own a dollar of it. William B. Dinsmore owned it all. I did not sell them anything I owned. They try to make out that I engineered a deal by which Sherburne, Spooner, Taft and myself sold to the company for $850,000 stock that was worth only $150,000. That is false. The stock had been purchased by President Dinsmore and by him transferred to the company. It had appreciated in value largely after Mr. Dinsmore bought it, but it was a good time to jump on me and poor Spooner." Mr. Hoey added that he had not owned any stock in the Adams Express company for sixteen years but that was no reason why he should not faithfully look after its interests. William B. Dinsmore, son of the late President Dinsmore, confirmed Mr. Hoey's statement that his father had owned the full batch of Massachusetts Express stock, which he transferred to the Adams Express company. Sometime latter when his father was on his death bed, he heard that the United States Express company was after the remainder of the stock and on his advice the Adams Express company bought the rest of the stock that had been acquired by Messrs. Hoey, Spooner and Sherburne.

IS THE CZAR CRAZY?

Traces of Insanity Run Through the Romanoff Dynasty.

BERLIN, Oct. 21.—The French pamphlet, arguing that the Czar is a madman is one of the strongest publications ever issued from the press in Germany. The writer goes into the history of Russian rulers from the time of Ivan, the terrible, and traces an insane taint through the Romanoff dynasty. The writer argues that the insanity of the present Czar is directly inherited from his grandfather, Nicolas, who was driven to madness and death by defeat in the Crimean war, and he prophesies a similar fate for the present Czar. The pamphlet roused the anger of the Kaiser, it is said, because it reminded him closely of the attacks of the French press upon himself and he therefore caused the sale to be forbidden.

SUGAR TAKES A DROP.

Two of the Leading Refineries Knock Prices Away Down.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—War has been declared between the Franklin Sugar Refining company, of Philadelphia and the American Sugar Refining company, of New York. The Philadelphia refiners made a cut in prices last Friday. The New York people met the cut yesterday, and granulated sugar was selling at 4 1-16c, a decline of 3-16c. A further decline is looked for today. The only reason assigned for the cut is that holders had big stocks and wanted to unload. The market is demoralized.

A GREAT ORATOR GONE.

Judge Higginbotham Dies in the Keeley Institute.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 21.—Judge R. K. Higginbotham, one of the most eloquent orators that ever took the stump in this city, went to the Keeley institute for the bichloride of gold treatment at Plainfield on Saturday night. He took the injection for two days and died Monday night. He stumped New York with Roscoe Conkling for Garfield in 1880.

Last evening, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Clements, 57 Williams street, at 8 o'clock, occurred the marriage of their daughter Miss Agnes to Mr. William G. Page. In a few weeks Mr. and Mrs. Page will be at home to their friends at 338 Lafayette street. Mr. and Mrs. Page have the congratulations of a large circle of friends.

ANOTHER HORROR.

Five Persons Killed Outright, and Fifty Wounded in a Disaster to a Burlington Train.

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—Five persons were killed and fifty or sixty injured in a railroad wreck last night at Monmouth, Ill., on the Burlington road. The Omaha and Denver fast express, which left this city at 6:10 p. m., ran into an open switch and the entire train was thrown from the tracks. Engineer Emerson and the traveling engineer of the road, who had gone into the cab half an hour before, were killed outright. A lady passenger was found pinioned under the trucks of the sleeper. She had evidently been hurled through a window by the crash. Her body was crushed into an unrecognizable mass. Near her were a man and woman both dead under the sleeper. The train consisted of three sleepers, of two chair cars, one smoker, one baggage, one express and two mail cars. The sleepers were heavily loaded, as were also the chair cars. Emerson, the engineer, was one of the oldest passenger engineers in the country, and he had been on this run for several months. Only two or three stops were made between this city and Monmouth. The train was speeding along at the rate of forty-five miles an hour when it struck the open switch. The engine dashed along on the spur track for a few yards when it turned over on its side, burying Emerson and the traveling engineer of the road beneath it. Emerson was found with his feet touching the fire box. There was a deep wound in his head and his body was terribly crushed. After the engine left the track the baggage car and the cars behind it were also hurled from the rails. Most of the passengers in the three sleepers had retired. The first intimation they had of danger was when the coaches crashed against each other. Men, women and children were hurled from their berths. The lights went out, leaving the cars in total darkness. A terrible panic ensued and women screamed frantically for help. It is said that none of the passengers in the sleepers were killed but many of them were severely injured. Monmouth is a railroad town, with the traffic concentrated in the western portion of the city. Here the tracks are numerous and with frequent crossings. The Burlington system runs north and south and the main depot of the city is in the western outskirts of the city. There are many manufacturing enterprises in the town and the switches and side tracks lead almost directly from the crossing where the accident is supposed to have occurred.

THE DETAILS OF THE ACCIDENT.

MONMOUTH, Ill., Oct. 21.—The Burlington's Deadwood express was wrecked at this place at 11:15 o'clock last night. Four people were killed, four others seriously injured and dozens of others received severe cuts and bruises. The train was fifteen minutes late at Galesburg, and Conductor Hughes laughingly blamed the engineer for the lost time. "All right," said the engineer, "hold on to your hat going through Briggsville." But the train never reached that point. Just east of here is a straight stretch of track a little bit down grade and the engine was going at a rate of about fifty miles an hour, when the switch leading to the track of the Monmouth Mining and Manufacturing company was reached. It had been thrown by someone and left in that position with the target light extinguished.

When the train hit the main track and started onto the siding Engineer Emery reversed his engine and stuck to his post but the engine left the track after running a few feet on the siding and all of the seven cars, with the exception of the rear one, a Pullman sleeper, went into the ditch. Engineer Emery, Traveling Engineer Coutant and Fireman Peter Anderson went down with the engine. The two engineers were killed instantly and the fireman is fatally injured and cannot long survive. Those in the smoking car escaped with their lives. Standing on the steps of the next car were two students of the Hedding college, Frank L. Johnson of Avon and W. R. Hardin, of Abingdon. They jumped, and Johnson was killed by a blow on the head from a flying timber.

Sitting midway in the car were George Allen, wife and infant child of Lamonia, Ia. Mrs. Allen was killed instantly and the child seriously injured. Mr. Allen's injuries are slight. Few in the coach escaped without being cut by broken glass or being badly bruised by being thrown against seats when the shock came.

It is little short of a miracle that any in the first car escaped alive. The seats [illegible] were broken by the shock and the [illegible] a moment after [illegible] [illegible]. There is no doubt that the wreck was deliberately planned by some one who [illegible] [illegible]. The switch had been locked [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] however, the switch had been left open by careless section men. [illegible] time there is no such claim. [illegible] deliberate intention was to wreck the train regardless of the number of lives that might be sacrificed.

The railroad authorities will [illegible] effort to run down the scoundrel who is responsible for the disaster. Frank Johnson, one of the killed, was on his way to this city to enter Monmouth college. He had been attending Hedding college, but in company with two other students had been expelled for what the faculty deemed the sin of attending a theatrical performance. He comes of a wealthy family and his death will cause great sorrow in his native town of Avon.

DAMAGING FIRES.

Cleveland, St. Paul and Minneapolis Each Suffer Heavy Losses by the Flames.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Oct. 21.—Fire broke out in a large five story building at the corner of Center and Winslow streets at 1:30 o'clock this morning and a loss of $100,000 resulted. The upper floor of the block was occupied by the Oxehead Acid company and it is supposed that the fire started in this department as the result of spontaneous combustion. Acids deposited in the tanks on the top floor caused a series of terrific explosions, and scattered bricks, stones and timbers in all directions. Several firemen narrowly escaped being fatally injured by the flying missiles. The first, second and third floors were occupied by the Royal [illegible] Machine company and the Vinland Brass company. The insurance will cover about two-thirds of the loss.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 21.—At 12:40 this morning flames were discovered in the warehouse of Bardwell, Robinson & Co., sash, door and blind manufacturers, Twenty-fourth avenue North, and Fifth street. The structure is a four-story brick and was filled with the product of the firm's mill which stands only thirty feet west of it. The inflammable contents made it impossible to save it and all efforts were directed to saving the mill, which is one of the most complete in the country and cost $150,000. In a little over an hour the roof fell into the fiery crater with a crash, which was quickly followed by the collapse of the building and by 3:15 the fire was quenched. The loss is $100,000 and is not more than half covered by insurance. The firm will rebuild. The firm had recently secured a big contract for furnishing sash, doors and blinds for the World's Fair buildings and a vast quantity of the material was stored in the warehouse.

At 6:30 this morning the car repairing shop of the Chicago, St. Paul and Kansas City road, at South park, St. Paul, burned to the ground. Loss not yet ascertained.

ANOTHER ACCOUNT.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 21.—One of the two main shop buildings of the Chicago, St. Paul and Kansas City road, located at South Park, was destroyed this morning about 6 o'clock. The second story was filled with finished lumber and upholstering plush, all of which was destroyed, with the machinery and contents of the first floor. Loss, $40,000, fully insured.

CARING FOR THE DEAD.

The New Firm of Kerlin & Strait, Funeral Directors.

Two enterprising gentlemen, William E. Kerlin and J. F. Strait, recently of Ohio, have established at 89 Calhoun street, the new Odd Fellows block, in the undertaking and embalming business. The young men brought with them to Fort Wayne a good will toward all men and an experience that is so necessary in a successful funeral directing business. Mr. Kerlin, whose old home is at Greenfield, Ohio, where his father is at present a prominent banker, has had an experience covering a period of eight years, which time he spent in Charleston, Atlanta and other large cities and having acquired a thorough insight into the business, he associated himself with J. F. Strait of Springfield, Ohio, a well known citizen of Springfield, Ohio, who spent twelve years in the ministry, but who was obliged to leave the pulpit on account of failing eye sight. Mr. Strait was pastor of the Christian church at Springfield, in which congregation he has many warm friends today.

Messrs. Kerlin & Strait believed that in this fast growing community there was room for another undertaking establishment so they came on with a select stock of latest styles in caskets from the finest cloth with cedar and chestnut shells to the cheapest grades in wood. They have large and small funeral cars built on the most approved plan and they are beauties. Their method of embalming is on the most scientific basis, giving the dead a natural life-like appearance. The firm seems bent upon making their business strictly first class in every respect. A SENTINEL reporter who was shown through the establishment [illegible] [illegible] day, never saw a more complete assortment of goods of a similar kind. They will no doubt make progress in business here for Fort Wayne.

TURNING THE SCALES.

A White Man Lynched for Murdering a Negress.

COLUMBIA, La., Oct. 21.—John Ruth, a young white man was lynched Monday night for the murder of Harriet [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

PEELE AND POLITICS.

William Peele, state statistician, is in the city today on business connected with his office. He is making arrangements to gather statistics relating to labor for the state's annual report. He will secure a list of the manufacturers here, the wages paid for skilled and unskilled labor and much other information that will be of general interest. Mr. Peele has appointed as his deputy William P. Ball? of the [illegible] Herald, whom he has authorized to collect data from this city for the completion of the report.

Mr. Peele is one of the best posted men in politics at the state capital and [illegible] Sullivan put it [illegible] people to [illegible] how things were going over the state.

"I suppose the democrats of Indianapolis feel pretty good over the recent victory," said the reporter, "An Indianapolis democrat always feels good when asked this question, especially if the majority has been large on their side."

"Yes," said Mr. Peele with a smile, "the majority was much larger than even the most sanguine democrat expected. Twelve hundred republicans walked up to the polls and voted for Sullivan. It always pays to put up a good man. Sullivan is a man like Cleveland. He is not afraid to enforce the laws. He has said hard things and the people respect him. I would not be at all surprised if Sullivan would now be urged to accept the nomination for governor."

"By the way, who else will enter the political arena for gubernatorial honors?" asked the reporter.

"As for candidates, the woods are full of them but only a few very prominent. Gil Shanklin at present heads the race with Colonel Matson, Captain Myers and B. F. Shively, congressman from the Thirteenth district in close pursuit."

"I see by the papers that Jim Rice will be a candidate."

"No; Jim Rice will not enter the arena this time. Jim could have received the nomination in 1888 without any trouble. But this time he will not be a candidate. Jim is entirely too modest to run for governor."

"What about Jewett? Don't he want to run the affairs of the state and pardon out criminals?"

"No, Jewett will not under any circumstances be a candidate. I had a talk with him only a few days ago, and he informed me that he could not afford to leave his law practice which is very large, to run for office, even if it would place him at the head of the ticket."

"Has not Bynum an itching under his liver just for the great office?"

"Bynum is being urged by his friends at Indianapolis to make the race, but he would rather remain in congress as long as he can. He likes Washington life and makes a first class congressman. He is very popular with the laboring class. He might run if he thought his chances were good."

"How is ex-governor Gray getting along in his race for president?"

"First rate. You can say Colonel Gray will be on the next national ticket. He will either be head or tail. I feel, from what I can learn, if the talk continues in New York state he will head the ticket. He is receiving letters almost every day from prominent democrats in different states, especially in the west, urging him to run and pledging their support. Indiana will be solid for Gray."

"What do you think about Ohio?"

"I think Campbell is gaining ground and has a good chance of being elected. The new election law will help the democracy in Ohio, the same as it did in our state. Col. Gray and Campbell will address a big mass meeting at Hamilton tomorrow. Last night Campbell had such a large crowd at Cincinnati that he was compelled to speak indoors and out in order to have the large crowd hear."

CUPID'S DARTS.

Marriage of Miss Georgia Boyd to Ed. Lipsett—Stewart-Dillenderfer.

The marriage of Miss Georgia Boyd to W. Ed. Lipsett takes place at 4 o'clock this afternoon at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Sarah Boyd, 221 Lafayette street. Rev. D. W. Moffat officiates. The engagement of this couple was first announced in THE SENTINEL some weeks ago but the date of the marriage was kept quiet. Mr. and Mrs. Lipsett will leave this evening for an extended tour in the northwest.

Today at Sturgis, Mich., occurs the marriage of Miss Mary, daughter of Mr. J. A. Dillenderfer, of this city, to J. E. Stewart, of Paducah, Ky. The ceremony will be performed by Rev. J. M. Boyce of Sturgis. Those who will accompany the bridal couple are Mrs. J. A. Dillenderfer, mother of the bride, Mr. Will Dillenderfer, brother of the bride and Miss Elizabeth Clapper, cousin of the groom. [illegible] [illegible] Mr. W. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Miss [illegible] Mr. [illegible] [illegible] Mr. and Mrs. Stewart will leave for a trip to [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] to Paducah, Ky. [illegible] home.

NEW LAW FIRM.

Perry Randall and S. R. Donaldson to Join Forces.

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] becoming a partner with Perry A. Randall [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. The firm will have rooms in Mr. Randall's office [illegible] and 20 [illegible] [illegible] are able lawyers and [illegible] [illegible] will make a strong team and one that will command a large practice.

Mr. S. L. Savage will continue his practice at the old office. He is an able and popular attorney and has a fine practice.

SHE ASKS DAMAGES.

Mrs. Nolls Commences an Action Against Christian Volz, a Prominent Farmer.

Some days ago Mrs. Lena Nolls had Christian Volz, a prominent farmer of Lafayette township, arrested on the charge of attempted rape. He was taken before Justice Walkover and bound over to court. Today, through Attorneys Harris, Mrs. Nolls filed a petition in the circuit court against Mr. Volz asking for $2,000 for his alleged assault upon her. The case excites great interest in the township in which the parties reside.

COURT CULLINGS.

Arthur Reed was arrested for drunkenness by Officer Lapp and the mayor sent him to jail.

An application for divorce from Charles Deaunder has been filed by Magdalena Deaunder, through her attorney, Colonel R. S. Robertson. The charges preferred are abandonment and failure to provide. The couple were married on May 27, 1880 and after a delightful honeymoon, lasting until June 11, the same year, they parted and thus it has remained since.

The following judgments have been entered in the superior court: Grosse Brand Brewing company against Frederick C. Diehl and others, $1,076.75; Andrew Voegel against Jacob Zuber, $170.60.

In the case of the American Straw Board company against Samuel Fisher and others, the jury returned a verdict for the plaintiff of $273.76.

John Zagler, a newsboy on the Pittsburg road, worked the change racket to the amount of $10 on Mrs. Katma, of Aurora, Ill., yesterday. He had his hearing in police court this morning and was bound over to court in the sum of $250. In default of bail he went to jail.

Victoria Mohl sues Philip J. Mohl for divorce on a charge of cruelty. The plaintiff alleges that the defendant is in the habit of getting drunk and ill-treating her on his arrival home. He has on several occasions beaten her with his fist. Two children are the fruits of the marriage and the plaintiff wishes their custody. E. V. Emerick appears for Mrs. Mohl.

Yesterday a radge-dee called at the mayor's office and put up bail for May Hardy, one of the women arrested for drunkenness Saturday afternoon, and she was released. Shortly after a gentleman from Columbia City called at the jail and wanted to see her. He claimed that the cape and one or two other articles of clothing she wore were stolen from his residence.

Wm. G. Page and Agnes M. Clements, John L. McKee and Gracie E. Bitzberger, John W. Chambers and Anny Depper, Rev. Martin Zagel and Amanda Mauth have been licensed to wed.

The case of Frank Jeammarger vs. Jos. Begert has been appealed from Justice Ryan's court to the superior court. J. R. Bittinger represents the plaintiff and Harry Hanna the defendant.

Charles Reitt created considerable excitement last night at 5 Grace street by his raving actions, but was finally quieted down.

LOCAL LINES.

Mrs. W. H. Bossert of Meckle and her daughter Mrs. Cyrene Warner, of Bluffton are in the city.

Mrs. West Morris of Detroit, is the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Brucker of Nelson street.

Amos Davis, local manager of the Domestic Sewing Machine company, has sold out to Louis Mohr who formerly conducted the business. Mr. Mohr will have his headquarters in his new building.

The grand council of royal and selected masters of Indiana opened its thirty sixth annual session yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock at Indianapolis. The Grand Treasurer Rees' report showed that $2,022.23 had been received during the year and $1,182.44 expended, balance remaining $839.79.

The grand council of Indiana Improved Order of Red Men held council [illegible] at Indianapolis yesterday. The great sachem gave the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] of Indiana as [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] membership of 7,876 members. WILL MEET HERE.

Railway Surgeons Decide Upon Fort Wayne as a Place for Future Meetings.

The surgeons of the northwest system of the Pennsylvania Railroad company held a meeting at the Grand Pacific hotel, Chicago, yesterday. About one hundred and fifty surgeons were present. Through the efforts of Drs. C. B. and Geo. C. Stemen of this city, who were present, the next meeting to be held in November 1892 was secured for Fort Wayne. It was decided to hold the meeting in this city every third year, the other places for such annual conventions being chosen at Pittsburg and Chicago.

Another meeting of surgeons of some significance will be that of the surgeons of the Wabash system to be held here November 12. It will attract to this city one hundred and twenty five professional men from all along the line of the road. This meeting will be open to the surgeons of other roads and they are invited to be present.

TWO WEDDINGS AND ONE SOCIAL.

Rev. John Merritt Driver Has Both Hands Full and Running Over.

With two weddings and a church social at three different places, the Rev. John Merritt Driver had his hands about full last evening. Just before ten Mr. Augustus H. Haenel, of this city and Miss Grace Turner, of Cleveland, Ohio, accompanied by a gay party of friends called at the parsonage and had their destinies indissolubly linked together. The nuptial words were uttered, the proper responses made, there was a mingling of bright tears and joyful congratulations and Mr. and Mrs. Haenel with their happy escort departed. At 8 o'clock Mr. Driver officiated, in a like capacity at 57 West Williams street. The high contracting parties were Mr. William Grant Page, a popular Pennsylvania railroad employe and Miss Agnes May Clements, one of the most popular and handsome young ladies on the south side. Only a few of the most intimate friends were present. An elegant collation was served at which the daintiest viands intellectual were gracefully commingled with those that appealed more directly to the palate physical. It was an ideal occasion. At 9:30 the dominie, much feasted, and by this time redolent with the hymeneal odors of orange blossoms appeared at the Epworth League social, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Hill, 8 Locust street. Here there was a jolly company of young people, with quite a sprinkling of those whose hearts enjoy a perpetual May and June, whatever tales "silver threads among the gold" may tell. As the wee sma' hours came on, the guests departed, thanking Mr. and Mrs. Hill and their amiable daughter Hattie for a most delightful evening.

POSTOFFICE AT YOUR DOOR.

A Box in Which You May Post as Well as Receive Your Letters.

Of the 1,015 models of house letter boxes submitted in response to the recent advertisement of the postoffice department the commission that examined them found only one that met all the requirements, and this pattern will undoubtedly receive the official approval of the postmaster-general some time within the next few days. It is a mechanical marvel, at once beautiful in its simplicity and admirable in its effectiveness for the purpose contemplated.

The contrivance looks somewhat like an ordinary lamppost letter box on a small scale. It is attached to the front door, and is rather decorative than otherwise. The postman comes along with mail matter to deliver. He thrusts the letters into the box from beneath and they are retained in such a manner that it is impossible to withdraw them. They can only be taken out from above by the householder, who has a key for that purpose. It is not necessary, however, for the latter to open the receptacle every time that he wishes to ascertain if it contains anything. There is a spring at the bottom, which yields readily to a touch if the box is empty, otherwise, supposing that even a postal card is inside, it is immovable. Supposing that the intended recipient is inside the door he is not obliged to go outside in order to investigate, for a little knob projects through the door panel, which he has merely to pull in order to inform himself on the point. If it fails to yield, there is a letter, otherwise there is none. In a word, the owner, upon reaching home or at any time while indoors can learn by simply touching a button whether there is mail for him.

But this wonderful box is not only a receptacle for mail. It also delivers letters to the carrier for posting. If the owner has any missives to send he drops them in through a slot at the top of the box. He can only do this after first lifting into view a little target bearing a red disk toward the street side, and the target cannot be shut down again so long as anything remains in that compartment. The postman who comes along [illegible] red disk very readily from across the street. He [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] opens the door and takes out the letters. A great attachment [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] new paper [illegible] The whole [illegible] [illegible] $1.10.

HELD UP.

Frank Cox Assaulted and Robbed on Lakeside.

At a late hour last night [illegible] [illegible] employe in the [illegible] [illegible] of the [illegible] money he had. As the highwaymen were about to take his watch, Frank nimbly slipped from their clutches and the way he circled for home was not unlike the swift escape of an urchin from a watermelon patch, with the bull dog in the background. The robbery was reported to the police, but all efforts to apprehend the guilty parties have so far failed.

INSANITY AND DEATH.

George B. Wells, the Harness Maker, Dies in the Insane Asylum at Richmond, Ind.

A telegram received here this morning conveying the intelligence that George B. Wells of this city, died at the Richmond insane asylum last night. Mr. Wells was an old business man of this city having been engaged in the harness business for many years. He recently became a mental wreck, and while evidently insane he was taken to the asylum. His case was beyond all hopes, consequently his death is only a relief from a life long blank in a madman's cell. He was well known all over the county and had numerous friends. His remains will be brought to this city tonight.

When about three years of age Mr. Wells received a stroke of numb palsy which disabled him for life and when about six years of age he fell from a barn loft which crippled him. After all this sad misfortune he was unable to speak until he was fourteen years of age. He then started the harness trade as an apprentice, working in Michigan until 1870, when he came to Fort Wayne. He has resided here ever since. In 1883 Mr. Wells engaged in business for himself. He gained a reputation of being an honest and upright business man. He leaves a wife, two sisters, two brothers, and a wide circle of friends to mourn his loss.

The funeral will occur Sunday afternoon from his late residence mentioned above. Mr. Wells was born in Chatham, Canada, Nov. 13, 1844. He was forty-seven years of age at the time of his death.

OTHER DEATHS.

The funeral of Rudolph Bensman will take place from the Cathedral tomorrow morning. The papers have misstated facts in this case by saying that he had been ill with consumption several years. His illness dated from the time he was a victim of la grippe last year.

AN ARTIST OF MERIT.

Mr. H. A. Kerchefer, Whose Studio is in the New Arcade Building.

One of the occupants of the new and handsome Arcade building, on Berry street, is H. A. Kerchefer, formerly of the well known firm of Dornbush & Kerchefer, who will continue to do all kinds of frescoing and tapestry painting.

Mr. Kerchefer is a natural born artist and possesses qualifications of the highest order of merit in the business. He studied under that celebrated master of his profession, Professor Ackerman, of Notre Dame, and other artists of equal eminence and ability. Being well fitted for his chosen calling, success came to him from the very start and he has attained a reputation in his profession of which he can well feel proud.

The death of Mr. Dornbush will not interfere in any way with the frescoing and tapestry painting, but he will drop the portrait work, which was the specialty of Mr. Dornbush, and devote himself exclusively to the two branches mentioned above. In this the firm had obtained an extensive business and had done work not only in this city but at Chicago and elsewhere. Their frescoing and tapestry painting ornamented hundreds of buildings, among them being many in this city, one of the latest being on the room at the corner of Calhoun and Columbia streets, which shows to some extent the skill of Mr. Kerchefer in plastic moulding. This style of work, which is as handsome as can be, Mr. K. tells us, can be put up in an endless variety of ways and as elaborate as one may desire.

His work in other cities, and in this, have been universally admired and has given satisfaction in all cases, because he understands in detail every branch of it and it is done under his own personal supervision. He has a corp of assistants who are all artists in this line and everything entrusted to them will consequently be done in a first class manner. His work speaks for itself and persons who have anything in his line to do can rest assured that it will be well done if it is put into the hands of Mr. Kerchefer.

He is now located in room No. 22, Schmitt block, but his patrons will after Nov. 1, find him in pleasant quarters in the Arcade building and ready to promptly attend to any contracts that may be entrusted to him. Mr. Kerchefer has made many friends since coming to this city by his business methods and the success he has attained attest his worth as an artist. In the future, as in the past, he will be found winning laurels in his profession.

RESTORED TO HEALTH.

Secretary Blaine Leaves Augusta for Washington.

PORTLAND, Me., Oct. 21.—Secretary Blaine has decided to return to Washington today, leaving Augusta on a morning train. He will arrive in Boston at 5 o'clock this afternoon and will proceed immediately to Washington. Mrs. Blaine will accompany him. Mr. Blaine is completely restored to health and feels buoyed with impatience to the time when he will resume work in the state department.

Mr. and Mrs. Jos. P. Hanna, of Rock [illegible], Ind., are guests of Mrs. W. H. Miller, of West Jefferson street.

I have many times studied over what [illegible] has done for me. It has restored me to health and happiness, for before [illegible] Remedies I was given up by all the doctors [illegible] San Francisco, but [illegible] a gentleman [illegible] ... [illegible] sooner, I should certainly have saved [illegible] $50 to $500. I was almost [illegible] look upon with everyone [illegible] disgusted terribly, and almost as dark as coal from my head [illegible] my knees on both legs, and after that it broke out all over my body, but after using [illegible] sets of Cuticura Remedies I was perfectly restored to good health, and have not [illegible] since, which is for [illegible] years. A great number of people visit my establishment, and I have told hundreds of people what Cuticura has done for me, but have thought that I ought to write and let you know, so that you can refer anyone in this county to me.

Gervaise Graham

Mrs. Graham's Cucumber and Elder Flour Cream.

Is not a cosmetic in the sense in which that term is popularly used, but permanently beautifies. It creates a soft, smooth, clear, velvety skin, and by daily use gradually makes the complexion several shades whiter. It is a constant protection from the effects of sun and wind and prevents sun burn and freckles, and blackheads never come while you use it. It cleanses the face far better than soap and water, nourishes and builds up the skin tissues and thus prevents the formation of wrinkles. It gives the freshness, clearness and smoothness of skin that you had when a little girl. Every lady, young or old, ought to use it, as it gives a more youthful appearance to any lady, and that permanently. It contains no acid, powder or alkali, and is as harmless as dew and as nourishing to the skin as dew is to the flower. Price $1.00 at all druggists and hairdressers, or at Mrs. Gervaise Graham's establishment, 103 Post Street, San Francisco, where she treats ladies for all blemishes of the face or figure. Ladies at a distance treated by letter. Send stamp for her little book "How to be Beautiful."

Sample Bottle mailed free to any lady on receipt of 10cts in stamps to pay for postage and packing. Lady agents wanted. Wholesale Agents: Morrison, Plummer & Co.; Meyer Bros. & Co., St. Louis, Mo.

Paul Mossman Writes "The Sentinel" an Interesting Letter from Glasgow.

Special Correspondence of The Sentinel.

GLASGOW, Scotland, Oct. 2, 1891.

Since writing [illegible] ... [illegible] Paris [illegible] ... Dieppe and New Haven [illegible] ... Newhaven [illegible] London [illegible] ... [illegible]

I left London and the continent [illegible] again and [illegible] the letter to the country of Great Britain. Everything here [illegible] so-called country.

After a stay of two weeks spent in the great foggy metropolis we took an early morning train for Oxford. Here we wandered through college halls, parks and quadrangles to our hearts' content. Here we were on the very banks of the Isis where our hero Tom Brown rowed many a victorious race and here were the cricket fields so dear to the heart of every Englishman. All university towns seem to have an air about them peculiarly their own, and it brings a lonely feeling to a fellow just out of college to wander about the old halls, to read the college notices on the great bulletin boards and to catch a glimpse of musty old class rooms—a lonely feeling when you know that you have done with all that. Oxford is very old. According to the popular tradition the university was founded by King Alfred in 872, but its first authentic history dates from the twelfth century. The university is composed of twenty-one colleges and at present there are about [illegible] students in attendance. The most wealthy and fashionable college is Christ Church, which boasts of such distinguished alumni as Sir Philip Sidney, Ben Jonson, the Wesleys, Wellington and Gladstone. The St. Mary Magdalen college is perhaps the most beautiful in Oxford, and it was among the beautiful parks and walks of this college that Addison spent the most of his time when an undergraduate here. Some of these colleges are more expensive and fashionable than others, so that a student can easily suit his purse and tastes. The old "town and gown" disturbances, with which an Ann Arbor alumnus is not wholly unacquainted, are now almost things of the past. A very serious riot, however, occurred about a century ago in which over fifty students were killed, but probably that was only a newspaper story, for I suppose reporters were as eager for college sensations then as now.

Oxford is perhaps the prettiest and most pleasant university town in the world. Hawthorne says of it, "The world, surely, has not another place like Oxford; it is a despair to see such a place and ever to leave it, for it would take a lifetime and more than one, to comprehend and enjoy it satisfactorily."

However, two days was all of our lifetime we could spend there and our next stopping place was Stratford-on-Avon, the birthplace of the immortal Shakspere. Stratford is a pretty little village of about 8,000. The streets are wide and clean but the low thatched-roof houses built of wood and mortar give the town a very old appearance. There are many places of interest here connected with the history of the great dramatist. The house in which Shakespeare was born is kept by the government in substantially the same condition in which it was in the poet's time. As you stand in the little barn-like room in which Shakespeare was born, you feel almost instinctively that you are on sacred ground, and it is with a feeling of awe and reverence that you look upon the rude, rough walls which over 300 years ago witnessed the birth of such a genius. The "Anne Hathaway" cottage is about one mile from Stratford. This is the cottage in which William courted his future wife, and the old seat on which the loving couple sat on moonlight nights is still shown. I fancy that the young lover spoke very beautifully and poetically of the moon and stars as he and his lady love sat together on that old oaken seat. The name of Shakespeare is the only thing of importance in Stratford, and we find there every store and almost every article of sale connected in some way with the name of Shakespeare. An old resident once said to Mr. Hales: "I am sure, sir, we ought to be very much obliged to Mr. Shakespeare for being born here, for I don't know what we should have done without him."

From Stratford we made an all day's journey to a little old village in the very north of England to Alnwick in Northumberland county. The ride through the English towns and well cultivated farm lands was very interesting. The farms here look like beautiful gardens. They are kept in such excellent order and have been cultivated so long that our American farms would look somewhat new and wild beside them. But the crops here are very poor this year and America will have to give all Europe a big lift. The heavy rains and cold weather for the past month have been serious drawbacks to the farmers. We have not had two consecutive bright days since we have been in Great Britain.

Alnwick is the seat of the Duke of Northumberland, who owns nearly 200,000 acres in the county. His fine old castle is one of the best preserved feudal piles in England.

From Alnwick it is only three hours to Edinburgh, one of the most beautiful cities in Europe, and very fairly called "The Modern Athens." The city is [illegible] two hills, and the low [illegible] between has been transformed into magnificent terraces and parks. The two parts of the city are as unlike as can be imagined, the one with old high buildings [illegible] narrow [illegible] streets, the other with elegant stores [illegible] of modern [illegible] ... [illegible] we visited Melrose Abbey and Abbotsford, the old home of Walter Scott.

Glasgow is about 50 miles from Edinburgh and is the second city in population and importance of the kingdom. Dr. Albert Shaw, one of the lecturers at Ann Arbor, who is a close student of municipal government, said that the city of Glasgow had the most municipal government of any city in the world. The city owns and controls the gas and water works and the street railways. It gives the [illegible] of the city and has established [illegible] lodging houses and public baths and wash houses. The streets are paved with solid building material. The municipal buildings are noted for the beauty and grandeur of their rich interiors. The ship building of the Clyde is known the world over and a visit to the busy docks and ship building yards is an interesting and instructive one.

From this city we have made excursions out to Loch Lomond and the Trossachs, famed for their beautiful Highland scenery. Also one day we made a pilgrimage to Ayr and the Burns cottage. I gave the old janitor of the auld haunted Alloway Kirk a small fee, and he recited for us the whole of Tam O'Shanter in the purest Scotch dialect. It was worth the trip to Ayr to hear that alone.

Tomorrow my brother sails from here for old America and home. If you want to feel how dear the name "America" is to you just come to Europe for a few months. When I get real lonely for the "dear old country" I walk the streets and whistle "Yankee Doodle," "Hail Columbia" and "America," and then I feel better. Perhaps they will arrest me for that when I get to Russia. If they do, I may be able to get a letter through on Siberia.

PAUL MOSSMAN.

JAMES STEPHENS.

After but little has been heard of him for twenty years, at this juncture in Irish affairs James Stephens reappears in Dublin. He is now seventy years old, and it is not likely that he will become an agitator, particularly as there is an indictment for high treason standing against him in Dublin. The old man lives on an annuity bought for him a few years ago and his admirers are trying to raise money wherewith to buy him a house in Dublin. It is needless to say the head center of the Fenian movement has no sympathy with Gladstonian Irishmen, and that his intimates among the Irish people are of the more advanced school. The nearest approach to Fenianism now in existence in his land is perhaps the Young Ireland Society of Dublin, which contends for the policy, identical with that of the organization to which Stephens was the head, which would make open war for the absolute independence of Ireland. It is conjectured that Mr. Stephens may have an understanding with John O'Leary, leader of the Dublin organization.

James Stephens was originally clerk in the office of the railway contractor in the county Tipperary. He was wounded in the rebellion of 1848, but made his escape to Paris, where he earned a living by translating English books into French. In 1857 he returned to Ireland and the next year in association with Thomas Clarke Luby, founded Fenianism. He started the Fenian organization in America two years after. In the height of its strength Fenianism is believed to have had as many as 50,000 members in Ireland, possibly three times as many on this side of the Atlantic. Fenianism virtually broke down in 1865 and Stephens was arrested. He escaped from prison a few weeks after. Stephens, who had made his home on the continent of Europe since the failure of the conspiracy led by him, has visited America three times since 1865, the last time in 1879.

THEODORE STANTON, whose articles in the Westminster Review on Abraham Lincoln are attracting so much favorable attention, is not "an English writer," as has recently been said, but an American, born and bred. He is a son of Mrs. Elizabeth Cady Stanton. He has lived for some years in Paris, where he holds a high position, and is married to a French wife of exceptional literary and social gifts. Nor is he a newcomer in literature. Seven years ago the Putnams published a volume of which he was designer, editor and part author, "The Woman Question in Europe," a large and comprehensive work exhibiting the status of woman in all relations in all European countries. Most of the chapters were written by eminent women belonging to the countries which they represented. Mrs. Stanton has a daughter, Mrs. Blatch, married to an Englishman and living in London. Despite age and infirmity she frequently visits both her children, and is always, physically and intellectually, an impressive and welcome figure in the two great capitals.

The declining powers of old age may be wonderfully recuperated and sustained by the daily use of Hood's Sarsaparilla.

A NEWSPAPER VETERAN.

For the First Time in His Life Richard Smith Is an Officeholder.

Mr. Richard Smith, the veteran Ohio journalist, is close upon the allotted three score years and ten. Though he does not show all his years in his face he illustrates [illegible] in his life. In the sentiment of Holmes, he is sixty-eight years young, and has the mental vigor of his prime. His disposition is kindly, but he is stern in the exercise of discipline. Although prominent and influential for years in the councils of the Republican party, he never held public office until now, when by appointment he is president of the board of review of Cincinnati.

Mr. Smith was born in Ireland in 1823. He came to America in 1841 and followed the trade of a carpenter at Cincinnati. He had received a fair education and became acquainted with the employees of the old Chronicle, which afterward became the Cincinnati Gazette. Through their influence and that of several business men he was made superintendent of the Cincinnati chamber of commerce, retaining that position until 1855, when he resigned to devote himself exclusively to journalism. His merit and usefulness won him a small interest in The Gazette, which he added to until at the consolidation of The Commercial and Gazette he was the principal owner of the latter, the chief editorial writer and the shaper of its policy. After the consolidation he was business manager until Mr. Halstead went to New York, when he assumed general control, retaining that responsibility until the recent reorganization enabled him to resume editorial work.

Mr. Smith is an effective paragrapher, and his long editorials are vigorous. His style is controlled by the necessity he has been under as a busy man and contributor to crowded columns of saying and writing what he wanted to put before the public in the briefest intelligible form. He has long been one of the leading spirits of the Associated Press.

Mr. Smith has a striking physique. His head is large in proportion to his body. When in thought his expression is stern, almost severe, which has led to an unjust conception of his character by those who know him only by sight. His manners are earnest and his perception quick, and he has much of the keen, ready wit of his native land.

FRISCO'S OLD LETTER CARRIER.

How Mail Was Delivered to the Eager Gold Hunters.

Tim Mahoney, the first man who delivered letters in San Francisco, is still in the service in a way—that is, he is night watchman for the custom house. It already seems like ancient history to hear Tim tell of the times when he always got twenty-five cents for delivering a letter, and often a dollar; yet we know it to be true, for the Californian of the olden time who was doing even fairly well thought no more of a dollar than the average man does of a nickel, and it was a big thing then to get "a letter from home."

TIM MAHONEY.

It is painful to think of the vast numbers of letters which never found owners. Every month a cart load of "blind mail," as they called it, had to be hauled to the North beach and burned. Tim did this job and it grieved his heart. So he began to pick out letters, the addresses of which caught his fancy, and to hunt for the addresses. His eyes even now moisten when he talks of this, for he found many of them under saddening circumstances and was made acquainted with many a tragedy and romance.

In one case a letter was addressed simply "Jack Hayes," with a request that they would find the boy "somewhere in California," and "for the sake of his poor old mother." Tim carried the letter many a day and found Jack at last dying of consumption in a very low lodging house. The letter was from a sorrowing mother to an erring son and both the men cried as it was read. Tim not only forgot all about his fee, but dropped two dollars on the floor as he went out.

Sept. 1, 1850, a commission was made out empowering "Timothy Mahoney to deliver letters and other mail matter," etc., and this was the first official appointment of the kind. Even at that late day messengers watched all night for incoming ships, and when one arrived one man drove madly to the postoffice with the mail sacks, while the other roused the clerks. They had to lock the doors, for no matter what the hour was hundreds of men were sure to be on hand as soon as the news spread that a mail vessel had come in. As soon as the clerks could distribute the letters the signal was given, "All right!" Then the great doors swung open and the eager crowd rushed in. Such are the reminiscences of the oldest letter carrier in San Francisco.

Will Have Great Moral Weight.

While the Methodist ecumenical conference now in session at Washington is not a legislative or judicial body whose acts or decisions will be legally binding upon any of the churches represented, and while it is distinctly agreed that no votes shall be taken upon matters affecting the internal arrangements of any of the churches, it is no less true that any deliverance of this great body upon any question of denominational attitude toward other branches of the holy catholic church, or on the duty of Christians of every name in observing and protecting the sabbath, encouraging temperance and similar questions will have great moral weight within and without the denomination, and it is certain that there will be deliverances of that kind. All votes taken are of individuals, without any reference to the particular body with which the voter is connected.

A Favorite Remedy.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is a favorite during the winter months on account of its great success in the cure of colds. There is nothing that will loosen a severe cold so quickly, nor as promptly relieve the lungs. Then it counteracts any tendency toward pneumonia. It is pleasant and safe to take and fully worthy of its popularity. For sale by druggists.

RAILWAY RUMBLINGS.

The Nebraska Exhibition Train Arrives in the City—Local and Personal News.

A train bearing a large party of representative citizens of Nebraska and a fine exhibit of the farm products of that great agricultural state now stands at the Pittsburg depot. The train consists of three exhibition cars, one from the Burlington, one from the Union Pacific and the other from the Northwestern railroad, one Pullman car, and a baggage car. It is a novel and interesting exhibit and those who were fortunate enough to receive courtesy of Mr. Barden, who manages the train, will always consider that their time was well spent. The exhibition train is run under the direction of the Nebraska State Business Men's association and is under the supervision of the following members of the advisory board of directors: R. F. Hodgin, Omaha, general secretary; O. J. King, Lincoln, vice president; H. J. Lee, Fremont, treasurer; H. N. Dovey, Plattsmouth, assistant secretary; F. H. More, Kearney, member of trade committee.

The delegates representing the several counties are as follows: Adams county, Isaac LeDioyt, Hastings, and W. W. Philleo, Ayr; Antelope county, H. E. Kryger, Albion; Boone county, A. Harris, Albion; Box Butte county, C. A. Potter, Alliance; Buffalo county, T. L. Grafius, Sheldon, and Phil Brady, Kearney; Burt county, H. Jerger, Craig; Custer county, Rev. O. R. Beebe, Broken Bow; Cuming county, F. W. Melcher, West Point; Cass county, Samuel Waugh, Plattsmouth; Dodge county, James F. Hanson, Fremont; Douglas county, James Walsh and G. S. Benawa, Omaha; Hall county, L. A. Payne, Grand Island; Kearney county, J. A. Slater, Minden; Holt county, Joseph B. Sturdevant, Atkinson; Hayes county, P. E. Sullivan, Wallace; Lancaster county, John J. Gillilan, Lincoln; Merrick county, H. M. Kokjer, Clarks; Polk county, J. P. Heald, Osceola; Sheridan county, I. J. Stowitts, Rushville; Press representative, W. B. Lighton, of the Bee, Omaha.

The train left Omaha, Neb., last Thursday, and stopped in the principal cities of Illinois and Indiana en route. Engine No. 218, which brought the train down from Chicago, was also decorated with corn, pumpkins and other farm products, with now and then a flag and some bunting. As the manager states the purposes of the expedition are not speculative or of the nature of a real estate boom. It is the intention to simply show Nebraska's capacity for production of the fruits, grains, vegetables, and the raw materials for manufactures, and to refute the starvation stories which have gained circulation through the eastern states.

Thousands of our citizens visited the train this morning and were shown the wonderful exhibits therein by the courteous representatives. The train leaves tomorrow morning for the east.

BRIEF MENTION.

Pittsburg engines 122 and 199 are in the shops for repairs.

G. H. Wilcox, the painter in the Pittsburg shops, is ill.

Joseph Studer, of the Nickel Plate, is visiting relatives in Ohio.

H. Schoppmann, of the Pittsburg boiler shop, is sick and off duty.

W. P. Marks, machinist at the Pittsburg round house, is taking a few days' lay off.

Pittsburg Engineers C. J. Pierson and W. Swart are again on duty after a few days' absence.

C. D. Nell, Pittsburg passenger engineer, who was taking a vacation, has resumed his run.

Conductor H. Cooper brought down the Lake Shore passenger train from the north yesterday for the first time in two weeks. Mr Cooper has just returned from Amsterdam, N. Y., where he was looking after his wife's property.

Fireman Ed Bowler has returned from a hunting expedition. He works on the Nickel Plate.

Engineers H. Scheld and G. Miller are taking a few days lay off to attend to some private affairs.

The car shop force of the Pittsburg will next week commence work on an order for 100 gondola cars.

Frank O'Brien, of the Nickel Plate railroad, is lying at St. Joseph hospital, quite ill from typhoid fever.

J. T. Leach, a member of the relief advisory board, is in Cleveland on business connected with his office.

Nickel Plate Conductors McCormack and Miller have resumed charge of their trains after a brief absence.

The Anthony Wayne Manufacturing company are building a warehouse on Hamilton's addition, to cost $1,000.

M. Wambach, a messenger boy, fell into one of the engine pits in the Pittsburg shops yesterday and sprained an ankle.

William Leach, the boilermaker, who had his foot injured some time ago by a piece of iron falling upon it, has reported for duty.

Fireman Wells, who was scalded in an accident on the Nickel Plate, has recovered from the injuries and is again at work.

Frank Roderwalt has what he calls an "orange blossom" dog, which he claims has a pedigree a yard long. It is of the hound species.

Engineer Ogen and Brakeman Huff, of the Nickel Plate, have been on the "off duty" list for a day or two. The engineer is sick.

Henry Buesching, who yesterday lost his wife, formerly worked in the Pittsburg shops. The employes express deep sympathy for the bereaved man.

Engineer J. G. Bechtol, of the Pittsburg, is taking a month's vacation. His place at the throttle will be filled during his absence by Engineer J. C. Lyons.

In an accident at the Horton manufacturing works yesterday, George McConnell had the misfortune to lose two fingers and a thumb from his right hand.

Firemen Houser and Rose, Conductor Kutschman and Brakeman D. Eggman, all of the Nickel Plate, have returned to work, after an absence of some days.

C. B. McCormick has been appointed foreman of engines on the Pennsylvania lines west of Pittsburg, with headquarters at Pittsburg, vice E. R. Beaty, transferred.

Engineer Ed Stokes, of the Grand Rapids road, is the father of a boy baby, who came yesterday. This accounts for Mr. Stokes' absence from duty today.

The funeral of Mrs. Henry Buesching will take place tomorrow at 1 o'clock at Auburn, and not today, as stated yesterday. Mr Buesching and family went up to that city today.

J. H. Schwerzgen left at noon today for a five days' trip in the interest of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers. He will visit lodges at Indianapolis, Lafayette, Greencastle and Terre Haute.

An axle of a Wabash freight car broke in two at the Lafayette street crossing last evening and obstructed the highway for a couple hours. It was lucky the accident did not occur out on the road.

G. S. Johnson, chief engineer of the Grand Rapids and Indiana road, and A. Walker, of Dubuque, Iowa, chief engineer of the Illinois Central, were at the Rich last evening. They joined the inspection party today.

What is the smallest railway in the world? Surely that from Ravenglass to Boot in Cumberland. It is like a large toy. The gauge is three feet, the engine an absurd little thing, and the carriages like miniature cages. As to the stations, they resemble double bathing boxes more than anything else. The railway officials are easily counted; the engine driver is also stoker, guard, ticket collector, ticket distributor and porter. Being late for a train is not a serious disaster, since any active person can overtake it, and it will stop to pick up passengers anywhere.

The Lake Shore people are experimenting with asphalt between the tracks in some of its yards. It is thought this will be better than ballasting with stone or gravel, producing a smoother and more sightly yard.

Frank Curtis, T. Kucher and J. M. Hobroke, of the Pittsburg machine shops, have purchased the right to manufacture the flying machines mentioned in this paper yesterday. After looking the field over they decided to locate the works in Africa.

The Baldwin Locomotive works has just completed for the Erie the largest compound engine in the world. Exclusive of the tender it weighs 185,000 pounds, has three pairs of drivers sixty-two inches in diameter and the weight of these is 107,000 pounds.

The new passenger depot to be built by the Michigan Central and the Illinois Central at Chicago will cost over a million dollars. The train sheds will be 210 feet wide. The officials of the Michigan Central are opposed to admitting any other railroads as tenants of the new depot.

The Chicago city council committee on railroads has passed an order requiring the corporation counsel to frame an ordinance commanding all railroads to elevate their tracks within the city limits fourteen feet above the street level. This order is the outcome of agitation over the number of accidents involving loss of lives at grade crossings.

A CREDULOUS OLD MAN.

How the Late King of Wurtemberg Squandered His Substance.

The recent death of King Charles of Wurtemberg has revived some very ugly scandals, involving two or three Americans. These men had obtained such an extraordinary influence over the old king that he ennobled them, squandered his revenue as they directed, and finally lived entirely with them, secluded in his palace. Then Queen Olga and the court officials interfered, the parasites were driven away, and for the rest of his life the king was virtually a prisoner in the royal apartments.

KING CHARLES.

Karl Friedrich Alexander was born March 6, 1823, married Olga Nicolajewna, daughter of Czar Nicholas I of Russia, July 13, 1846, and succeeded his father as King June 25, 1864. He co-operated with Prussia in organizing the new Germany and was in general a liberal ruler. He formed a strong attachment to Richard M. Jackson, of Ohio, vice consul at Stuttgart, made him his reader, created him a baron and bestowed princely gifts on him.

Mr. Jackson used his privileges with moderation, but the Rev Charles D Woodcock, of New York, and Mr. Donald Hendry, of St. John, N. B., were introduced into the palace, and, according to the Wurtembergers, these men swindled the old monarch shamefully. One of their methods was by spiritual manifestations, in which the king was persuaded that he could talk with his princely ancestors. The king's purse was exhausted in enriching these men, and the people threatened them so loudly that they departed in a hurry.

In Dom Pedro's Former Realm.

According to the recent census the city of Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, has a population of 849,000, of whom 335,105 can read and write. The government of Brazil has delivered to the legal representative of ex-Emperor Dom Pedro twenty-one tin boxes and two trunks containing manuscripts and documents of a private character which were left in the government offices. It is stated that the cocoa (chocolate) harvest along the Amazon river is greater this year than for any year previous except in 1850.

Cuba's Sugar Shipments.

Recent Havana advices show that of this year's crop of sugar 2,105,529 bags had been shipped from Cuba to the United States up the 31st of August ult., against 681,845 bags for the same period in 1890. Of the total, 1,196,003 bags went to New York, and 909,-533 bags to other ports of the United States. The total shipped to Europe was 149,760 bags against 201,458 shipped during the corresponding period last year.

There are nearly forty members of the house of commons who are the successors to peers, and are thus liable at any moment to be translated to the house of lords.

CHILE'S territory is about as large as that of the combined States of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Ohio and Indiana, with the whole of New England thrown in, and it has a population of only a little over 3,000,000. It is a good place for the restless emigrant who is seeking a roomy country to grow up in and isn't afraid of a revolution occasionally.

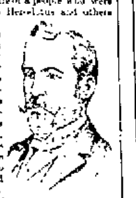
SOME GOOD EGYPTIAN STORIES.

Brought to Light by the Researches of an American Physician.

Egypt was for ages the land of mystery. It is now the open door which gives us a good view of the life of a people who were "the ancients" to Herodotus and others whom we call ancients. People who have not made it a study have scarcely any conception of the extraordinary progress made since the key to the oldest hieroglyphics was discovered, but the record is now so complete and the facts so clearly proved that even the conservative school books begin the "authentic history" of Assyria with the reign of Sargon 3,800 years before Christ.



DR. S. A. BINION.

Even at that time there had been wars between Assyria and Egypt which were spoken of as ancient. Not only are the royal records clear from a period 1,800 years before Moses, but hundreds of private citizens wrote out circumstantial accounts of their lives, which were laid in their tombs and are now read by scholars. Among others, Dr S. A. Binion, of New York, has given much time to a study of these personal sketches, and he has recently compiled the most interesting of them in a work of rare interest. Some of them are very amusing, especially that of the Prince Ram-es. The original record looks to the uneducated like a set of goose tracks in yellow sand, but the English of it tells this story:

When very young he fell in love and was for awhile unhappy, but did not lose his appetite. On the contrary he relieved his mind by going to banquets where he met several jolly fellows. After his good spirits were restored his beard grew and he began to study the duties of a man. He learned that his corpse would have to lie in a mummy state 4,000 years before the reviving gods would take him before Osiris. The mummy would need food during these 4,000 years, and so surviving friends painted his breakfast, dinner and supper on the walls of the tomb, enabling him to live cheaply during the interval by simply looking at them.

The "Ritual of the Dead" is a minute account of the examination before Osiris. One god examined the stomach, another the lungs, a third the heart and so on, and if all reported that these organs had not been abused the subject was then put through a catechism as to the way he treated his parents, his servants, his wife, his children and even his mother-in-law! There was a devil or demon to act as prosecutor, and sometimes a whole board of them to get up evidence and frame indictments.

One very interesting fact shown in these personal histories is that frauds were common in embalming the dead, from which it would seem that many priests and undertakers did not have as strong a faith in the judgment as the common people did. For instance, it would cost about $1,000 to properly embalm a crocodile (a sacred animal), and so these ancient frauds would only embalm the head, and for the rest of the body make an ingenious imitation out of wood, reeds, corn husks, etc. Another fact of interest is that the people were monogamists and the social position of women was much higher than in the Egypt of today. On the whole the record proves the Egyptians of 4000 or 5000 B. C. to have been a splendid set of fellows and makes one sorry that they died.

The street committee, before finally accepting the Berry street pavement, should see to it that the water will drain off perfectly at all points along the thoroughfare. At a number of places the pavement is at fault in this respect.

Judging from present appearances the hall of the city Y. M. C. A. will be packed tomorrow night to hear Frank Beard. His original, quaint sayings, coupled with his rapid humorous sketches keep his audience wondering and amazed.

The [illegible] glass company, of Anderson, Ind., has been awarded the contract for furnishing 115,000 feet of cathedral glass to be used in the offices and art building at the world's fair at Chicago. This amount will require more than ten cars to ship it to Chicago. The natural gas used by this company enables them to make a very superior grade of glass, and it is very probable that they will be given the contract for several other large buildings.

A. J. Moynihan, managing editor of the Journal, now exercises only one optic to write his paragraphs. Councilman Fred Beltz took the newspaper man out for a drive behind a fast colt yesterday. Faster and faster went the colt until the outfit was mistaken by astonished [illegible] for one of Foster's cyclones. When the excitement had subsided Mr. Moynihan was sitting by the roadside with one eye glued [illegible] and the other one [illegible] He was trying to tune that colt.

"Liar, thief and drunken scoundrel" is the kind of language that floated around in the Georgia Legislature the other day. Either Southern chivalry is completely dead to the world, or some Georgian is going to get hurt pretty soon.

As a result of eating German-bred pork, seven Saxons are dead and thirty others are very ill. It has not been learned that trichinosis from a German hog is materially different from that of the American porker—but it is much more numerous.

SHE WAS DIPLOMATIC

A Selfish and Annoying Traveler Finally Gives Up His Seat.

The east bound Jersey Central train on which I was coming to town the other day was crowded, and several ladies were standing in the aisle. Being as young as I look, unlike my neighbor, I gave up my seat.

A garrulous, middle aged man who occupied the outside seat next to me, seemingly stung by remorse and, maybe shame, but too selfish to give up his seat, said to the lady who was standing near him:

"Madam, I would gladly offer you this seat, but I really am a much older man than I look."

Pause for a polite refusal of that which was not proffered. But the lady took no notice of him.

"Under ordinary circumstances I contend that no man should retain his seat and allow a lady to stand. But you would hardly believe that I am well nigh on to sixty-one, would you? Yet such is the fact. People, particularly passengers, often take me to be no more than forty at the most, and consequently think I ought to give my seat to the ladies; but that is my misfortune."

No response.

"I presume that you yourself are at present the victim of your youthful appearance just now."

He thought he noticed a faint smile, but of this history makes no record.

"I feel confident that I am old enough to be your grandfather," continued the wily talker, "and besides I had one foot cut off and was shot in the other in 'our late unpleasantness,' and have contracted rheumatism, so that I can hardly stand, and it takes me half a day to walk a mile, and I know that under such circumstances you will pardon my seeming impoliteness."

Still no recognition.

"I fear lest I appear rude and bold in thus addressing you, a stranger, but owing to my extremely youthful appearance and the fact that I retained my seat while you, madam, were standing, I felt that some explanation was due you and I hasten to make it."

The lady turned her head away.

"Believe me, I assure you, that if I were not so heavily and unfortunately handicapped"——

Just then the conductor passed by. The lady whom that human hog had had the audacity to try to engage in conversation in attempted excuse for his hoggishness without the slightest indication that she had noticed or heard him, said to the conductor,

"Please, sir, eject that man. He has been annoying and insulting me, as these people will prove."

"That is true," said another lady who was a victim of this species of biped.

So the garrulous hog was hustled into the smoking car at a rate which showed that his battle scarred feet were well healed, to the satisfaction of all eyewitnesses.

He had no sooner been lifted out of his seat than the lady whom he had been addressing ensconced herself in it.
